

ABSTRACT

[0033] Briefly, a method and apparatus that may detect a property received signal. The property may be a modulation scheme and/or training sequence and the detection of the property may be done by estimating energy of one or more channel taps outside the range of a channel of the received signal.